After the Deal: A New Iran Strategy

Remarks by Secretary of State Mike Pompeo
The Heritage Foundation
Washington, DC
May 21, 2018

"We'll continue to work with allies to counter the regime's destabilizing activities in the region, block their financing of terror, and address Iran's proliferation of missiles and other advanced weapons systems that threaten peace and stability. We will also ensure Iran has no path to a nuclear weapon – not now, not ever."

On May 21, 2018, Secretary of State Mike Pompeo delivered remarks at The Heritage Foundation titled "After the Deal: A New Iran Strategy." He outlined the way forward following the President's decision to withdraw from participation in the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA). In his first major foreign policy address as Secretary of State, Pompeo presented a roadmap to achieve a new security framework that counters the Iranian regime's malign activities in the region, blocks their financing of terror, and addresses Iran's proliferation of missiles and other advanced weapons systems that threaten peace and stability.
